

MINERAL DEPOSITS IN EASTERN NEVADA

Twenty-nine mining districts in eastern Nevada are described in a report recently issued by the United States geological survey, department of the interior, as bulletin 648, "Notes on Some Mining Districts in Eastern Nevada," by J. M. Hill. These districts are widely scattered through an area extending from the northern part of the state to the extreme southern part, in southeastern Clark county. Not much has heretofore been known about the geologic features of the ore deposits in these districts, because they are relatively inaccessible or undeveloped.

Silver, lead, copper and gold are the principal valuable metals found, but tungsten and bismuth also are known to occur. Many of the deposits were found in the early sixties, when the rich oxidized ores were worked, but others have since been discovered from time to time, valuable ore bodies having been found as recently as 1911.

According to this report most of the ore deposits occur in sedimentary rocks that border intrusions of granites or porphyries. Gold and silver are found in Tertiary volcanic rocks in other parts of Nevada, but only one deposit of precious metal—a free milling gold ore—has so far been found in such rocks in this region.

The report is chiefly a record of facts, most of which are of local and practical interest. It is intended as a guide to those who wish to know something of the geologic occurrence, character, and stage of mining development of the ore deposits in the districts examined.

OUTLINES OBJECT OF BRITISH ADVANCE

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Oct. 13.—The objects of the British advance in France were outlined to the Associated Press yesterday by Major General F. B. Maurice, chief director of military operations at the war office. The general emphasized as one of the principal purposes already gained that the British pushing into the German lines had extended the fighting front by a length of 20,000 yards, so that if stationary trench fighting were resumed the Germans would have that much increased frontage to defend.

General Maurice was surrounded by maps showing in minute detail the topography of the country and positions of the troops at the different stages of the advance since the beginning of July.

"As we get on, our difficulties get less and less," he remarked, pointing out that the country thus far gained was hilly and strongly defended and that the British have now reached the lower rolling lands. Whereas the positions captured were intricate systems of defense, he said, the British now confront a single line of trenches.

"They (the Germans) are hard at work making another line here," he went on, indicating a line drawn on the map behind the present battle front.
